Malmfyndigheten lovar gott

Jokkmokk. Fyndet av järnmalm i Kallak, Björkholmsberget utanför Jokkmokk, täcker 500 hektar. Bolaget Beouwulf Mining vill starta en gruva då provborrningar tyder på att mer än 600 miljoner ton malm finns att hämta.

De 10 första borrhålen tyder på att mer än 400 miljoner ton järnmalm finns i den ena av de två malmkroppar som bolaget Beowulf Mining hittat i Kallak, längs Björkholmsbergets södra sida fem mil väster om Jokkmokk. Tester påvisar att den södra malmkroppen är upp till 400 meter bred och sträcker sig 2.400 meter. Därför söker bolaget nu bearbetningstillstånd för att skynda på en gruvstart mellan byarna Björkholmen och Randijaur. Om det beviljas är planen att påbörja testleveranser av pelletsprodukter med 70 procent järn till hågade stålkunder i slutet av nästa år.

I augusti 2010 avslutades provborrningarna i det andra fyndet som kallas Kallak norra. Fyndigheterna har hög kvalité och räknas till Skandinaviens största obearbetade järnmalmsfyndigheter, liksom Ruotevare ovan Kvikkjokk där bolaget också prospekterar.

- Scope of each project cut from 365 million tonnes to 62 million
- Each tonne = £6.00
- Plan to start production in 2013
- Export product to Europe
